Archduchess Friedrich of Austria has recently raised a tempest by characterizing as "preposterous extravagance" the time honored custom observed in Austrian palaces that a candle once extinguished may never be relighted.

The Duke of the Abruzzi, whose engagement to Miss Elkins is still under discussion, was born in Madrid a few days before his father, King Amadeo I. of Spain, abdicated his throne and resumed the title of the Duke of Aosta.

During the late ministerial crisis King Peter of Serbia ordered Dr. Kallivitch to be summoned to court to tender his advice. When reminded that this statesman was dead, his majesty cheerfully replied: "Of course, of course; it had slipped my memory. Well, no matter—another time."

Current Comment.

It seems to have been satisfactorily demonstrated that the fleet was entirely prepared for a frolic. —Pittsburgh Dispatch.

There are two kinds of foolish speculators, those who speculate with other people's money and those who speculate with their own. —Exchange.

What a sad young man Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt would be if he had to drive that coach from London to Brighton for the purpose of making a living! —Chicago Record-Herald.

Now they are using balloons to play hare and hounds in England. A few years more and we'll be sending the children out of an afternoon to play hide and seek among the clouds. What a commonplace sport old Mother Earth is becoming! —New York Herald.

Town Topics.

There has been a noticeable increase in the negro population of New York city recently, and most of it is settling on the upper west side of Manhattan Island.

Jeddo, Pa., has been an incorporated borough for forty years. It hasn't a saloon, a lockup or a constable. John Markle practically owns and rules it, a benevolent despot.

The city of Easton, Pa., has adopted a municipal flag, said to be a copy of the flag which waved over that town during the Revolutionary war. The flag has thirteen red and white stripes in the upper corner, and the remainder of the flag is blue, with a circle of eight white stars in the center.

Things Theatrical.

"The Roundup" will start in on another season next fall.

Eleanor Robson may be seen next season in a new play called "A Matter of Money," by C. M. S. McLellan.

Harry Lane, the baritone of "A Yankee Tourist," is considering an offer to star in an Irish play next season.

Hattie Russell in "Fluffy Ruffles" will be the first musical comedy attraction of Charles Frohman to be produced in the fall.

Lafayette, the king of filibusters. Congress is dead. It was a case of long-dying Congress.

All honor to Crandall Post, of the Grand Army of the Republic, although many failed to do the honor Saturday!

No wonder that there were several cases of heart failure in Boston and Cambridge Saturday; Harvard won a boat race from Cornell.

AT LAST.

The period of equivocation is past in the course of Congressman David J. Foster of the first Vermont district, for he has finally announced through the columns of the Burlington newspapers that he is not a candidate for the United States senatorship now held by Senator Stewart. In fact, he says he never was a candidate for the place in the strict interpretation of the phrase. In other words, he was only fiddling round to find the sentiment of the people of Vermont regarding his possible candidacy, while at the same time he was holding to the end of the string, the other end of which was attached to his present seat in the House of Representatives. The prompt, well-directed efforts of Frank L. Fish, an aspirant for the latter place, brought Mr. Foster to a realization sense that back here in Vermont the people have something to say on whom they shall bestow their favor and their confidence, and they will do the quibbling if any is done. The issues are now strictly drawn between Messrs. Foster and Fish, as it is likely that no other candidate will be injected into the field at this late hour, notwithstanding the possible entry by Secretary of State Fleetwood. The chances appear to be about even.

CURRENT COMMENT.

For governor—Fletcher D. Proctor, of Proctor.

There is no law—nor is there a political rule—prohibiting the renomination of a popular and efficient governor; therefore, the Republicans of Vermont should insist on the renomination of Governor Proctor. With him at the head of the state ticket the party will poll as large a vote as any in its history, if not larger, and that is what we must do next September. —Richford Gazette.

Odious Comparisons.

It seems to the editor of this paper that the Rutland Herald is a little bit unfair, to say the least, in singling out candidate Proctor for odious comparisons. Surely Prouty and Prouty's record will compare favorably with that of the man from Roxbury and it is with these two that the Rutland Herald should compare. The people of Vermont now have to do. —Fair Haven Era.

Senator Stewart's Attitude.

Considerable interest has been aroused by various statements in connection with the suggestion that United States Senator John W. Stewart, who was appointed by Governor Proctor to serve in the United States Senate until the legislature should elect a senator to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Redfield Proctor.

So far as we know Senator Stewart has authorized nobody to speak for him, but he does not hesitate to say that he feels that his present term of service in the United States Senate rounds out his career in the most satisfactory manner, and at his age he would not think of becoming a candidate for election before the legislature. At the same time, if the members of the legislature, reflecting the wishes of the people, wanted him to serve during the two years that will remain of Senator Proctor's term he probably would not object. —Burlington Free Press.

W. F. Scott For The Senate.

The Rutland Herald remarks that two of the four senators from Rutland county will take these seats this fall without opposition. The two are E. M. Butler, of Rutland, and W. F. Scott, of Brandon. The candidate from the south end of the county and the one from the west side are liable to have a little scuffle, but it seems to be admitted all through the county that Mr. Butler and Mr. Scott will not be opposed. Walter F. Scott was Brandon's representative in the last legislature and is credited with having admirably represented his town, and as Brandon is entitled this time to one of the four Rutland county senators, Mr. Scott is not only the logical candidate but is perhaps the best qualified of any of its available citizens. Mr. Scott has a wide acquaintance throughout the county, and his general fitness for the place is really admitted by all. His recent experience in the House will be of value in many ways and we fully expect that as senator Mr. Scott will serve with credit to his town and county. Brandon is surely with him to a man. —Brandon Union.

JINGLES AND JESTS

Before Their Marriage.
On the eve of their wedding day prospective bride and groom were respectively sitting and waiting for the future they'd spend side by side. Though their thoughts to the past kept unconsciously fitting.

The past and the future meant all in their eyes.
A rosy future, a past very pleasant.
And though they had thought but of the future, each friend they'd invited had thought of the present!

—Pittsburgh Post.

Taking No Chances.

"I have been proposed by letter," she explained. "Now, do you think I ought to mail my answer immediately or keep him in suspense for awhile?"

"Mail it!" exclaimed her dearest friend in a tone that had a trace of spitefulness in it. "If I were you, I'd telegraph it." And there was an emphasis put on "If I were you" that came near breaking a friendship that had extended over several years. —Chicago Post.

Just Stew.

There was an old lady who liked a rug.
(She lived in the city of Kalamazoo.)
She'd the cleverest cook to be found anywhere.
Who would make it quite deftly, but privately swears.

Should be given to this elegant, foine Irish stout!"

Blick—You don't say! Well, I suppose in those days the policemen did more pinching than ever. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Love In One Octave.

Sunday, Madge, you seemed so fair.
Love, the rascal, came to find me.
Monday morn I feared your stare.
Tuesday you thought fit to mind me.
Wednesday—well, perhaps you'd care.
Thursday saw your lips resigned me.
Friday came the solitaire.
Saturday the vows that bind me.
—Smart Set.

Fact.

Smartly—Yes, your daughter would be most charming were it not for her cold feet.

Mrs. Austero—Sir, what do you mean?
Smartly—Why, she ate six ices in succession.

Right!

The man who owns a baby
Will tell you how it bawls,
He'll swear the kid's a nuisance,
And, goodness, how he scowls!
But if you say you know it
And at the baby scowls,
The dad, you'll find, is ready
To knock your head clear off.

EDSON E. COLBY.

Funeral Yesterday of a Former Resident of Barre.

The funeral services of Edson E. Colby, who died at his home in Humboldt, Iowa, May 28, after a long illness with cancer of the stomach, were held at the home of his step-mother, Mrs. E. C. Colby of Washington street, at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. A service had been tendered by Rev. Francis A. Poole yesterday were held, Rev. Francis A. Poole officiating. The remains were taken to East Orange to-day for burial in the family lot.

Edson E. Colby was born in East Orange in 1844 and lived there during his boyhood, getting his education in the district schools. Upon leaving home he entered the employ of E. R. Skinner of Montpelier, being employed as a commercial traveler. Upon leaving Montpelier he came to Barre and engaged in a general mercantile business with the late G. L. Jackson. Upon the dissolution of the partnership with Mr. Jackson, Mr. Colby left 34 years ago for Humboldt, Iowa, where he has since resided. He was a successful business man, engaged in the banking business for many years, and for the past few years he has also been interested in the real estate business.

He is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Ellen Whitney of Williamstown, one brother, H. H. Colby of Washington; two half-brothers, C. M. Colby of East Orange and Frank J. Colby of this city; one half-sister, Mrs. L. C. Coffin of this city. Owing to ill health his wife was unable to come to Barre, but the body was accompanied by C. M. Colby and his niece, Miss Bernice Colby of Washington, who have been with him for the past seven weeks.
